MTA warns riders to prep for LIRR strike

No help. Congress said it wouldn't interfere in talks between the MTA and Long Island Rail Road workers.

New York's Congressional delegation said Wednesday it will not intervene in talks between the Metropolitan Transportation Authority and Long Island Rail Road workers.

Unless the MTA and labor groups, represented by the United Transportation Union come to an agreement by July 20, a strike might leave 300,000 riders stranded.

In preparation for a strike, the MTA is warning customers that they could expect congested roadways and "significantly longer" commutes.

The transit authority suggested riders should work from home, stay with friends, consider telecommuting, carpool or use bus services if a strike occurs.

MTA Chairman Thomas Prendergast sat down with Congress members Wednesday to discuss the situation.

"Neither side should anticipate Congress being involved," Rep. Peter King said after the meeting. "For anybody to be looking for a silver bullet from Congress would be making a big mistake."

Gov. Andrew Cuomo also argued that the union had a "false belief"

Alternatives

The MTA said Wednesday that LIRR riders should be ready for a strike.

- The organization suggested that riders telecommute or car pool if possible.
- A strike would lead to much longer commutes, the MTA said.

Massive impact

300K

A strike could leave up to 300,000 LIRR daily riders stranded.

10

The sides have 10 days to come to an agreement.

Staying out of it

"Neither side should anticipate Congress being involved. For anybody to be looking for a silver bullet from Congress would be making a big mistake." King federal lawmakers would step in, calling it "a major impediment to any real progress."

Labor leaders pushed back on the idea that they wanted Congress to step in.

"It was not the unions who went to D.C. looking for Congress," Anthony Simon, a spokesman for the labor coalition, wrote, "and we have maintained that the only solution was here in New York."

Simon went on to say that the MTA leadership should "stop playing games with people lives."

Talks are expected to resume between the two on Thursday.

Investigation

Man in critical condition after fight over dog

Authorities said a man remains in serious condition after he was punched in the face late Tuesday in a fight that reportedly started over a dog.

Police said the victim, Paul Martone, 49, did not know his attacker. The two reportedly got into an argument regarding Martone's dog at 6:30 p.m. as they were crossing the street at West 55th St. and Ninth Avenue.

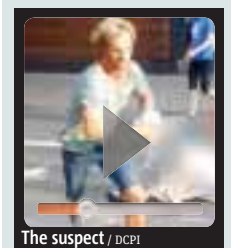

Video shows the two arguing when the suspect turned and landed a single punch on the unsuspecting victim's face.

The blow knocked Martone to the ground where he struck the pavement leaving him with a fractured skull.

The suspect ran off after the punch, leaving the victim in the middle of the Manhattan intersection. He remains in critical condition.

At least four people have died after being punched and hitting their heads this year, including a 56-year-old man from Queens who died late June.

Role play. Costumed characters of Times Square under scrutiny Costumed characters in Times Square are under scrutiny after a string of incidents involving Elmo, Woody, Mario and Spider-Man.

The Times Square Alliance and elected officials met Wednesday to discuss growing concerns and possible regulation of the street performers.

Officials said the characters often target tourists, sometimes forcing them to pay for photos and lashing out if they don't.

The performers have also been involved in several recent incidents: Last month, a Spider-Man was accused of groping a woman.

The company, which makes revenue by taking a 20 percent commission from drivers for each trip, will waive that fee for now.

The startup will begin with 500 drivers at 7 p.m. on Friday, Zimmer said.

Lyft is giving up in New York the big pink mustaches that usually grace its drivers' cars.

Moving into New York is "something we wanted to do for a long time, especially in the outer boroughs, building into a vision of creating a personal transit network at the lowest possible cost," Lyft co-founder John Zimmer said.

To stoke demand, Lyft will offer its service in New York for free for at least the first two weeks.

Lyft has also temporarily waived its commission in all of its markets. Lyft said it discussed its service with the city government, as well as the New York City Taxi & Limousine Commission. BLOOMBERG

Man gets 17 years in death of nursing home roommate

A former nursing home resident who pleaded guilty to clubbing to death his 71-year-old roommate has been sentenced to 17 years in prison, prosecutors said on Wednesday.

Thomas Yarnavick, 67, pleaded guilty in May for killing roommate Jailall Singh by striking him with a wheelchair footrest.

The bloodied footrest was reportedly found at the Beacon Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Queens, where the two lived.

"This was a particularly senseless and disturbing killing of a man living out his days at a nursing facility," Queens District Attorney Richard Brown said. REUTERS

The sleepover for kids at the American Museum of Natural History is a popular event. / ©AMNH, D. FINNIN

Museum's adult sleepover sells out in 20 hours

Slumber party. Only 150 adults will be able to drink, tour and sleep at the American Museum of Natural History.

History buffs rushed at the chance for an adults-only night at the museum next month.

The first Sleepover for Grown-Ups at the American Museum of Natural History on Aug. 1 sold out in just under 20 hours, with all 150 tickets gone by Wednesday morning.

The $375-per-person event is modeled after overnight visits for kids. Those nights have attracted some 64,000 people but limit age and adult-to-child ratios.

"We know the adults are just as intrigued," says Brad Harris, senior director of visitor services at the museum.

During the adult sleepover, ages 21 and up, participants will get dinner with wine and beer and see live jazz music. They can also visit special exhibits, tour the museum and sleep under the big blue whale.

It's too soon to tell if there will be more adult sleepovers in the future.

"We want to test it and see how it works," Harris said.

Amazing sight. Manhattanhenge makes an encore appearance

As the sun sets on the west side of Manhattan Friday, cameras will be rising in the east. Manhattanhenge is once again upon us, and this time, unlike the event in May, there will be no clouds dimming out the event, according to the Weather Channel.

Manhattanhenge, a name inspired by Stonehenge in England, represents the time of year where sunlight passes in perfect alignment through the cross streets of the Manhattan grid. It occurs twice a year in the summer.

Neil deGrasse Tyson, director of the Hayden Planetarium at the American Museum of Natural History, predicts the best time to get photos of the full-size sun is 8:24 p.m. on Friday.

This is the second and last opportunity for people to capture Manhattanhenge this year.

FOR ADULTS WITH TYPE 2 DIABETES

Januvia® works
when my blood sugar
is HIGH...

...and works less
when my
blood sugar
is LOW.

Actor portrayal.

JANUVIA works by enhancing your body's own ability to lower blood sugar.

- JANUVIA is a prescription pill you take once a day.
- JANUVIA, along with diet and exercise, helps lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause blood sugar going too low (hypoglycemia), because it works less when blood sugar is low.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause weight gain.

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA

Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Please read the Medication Guide on the adjacent page for more detailed information.

Merck Helps™ Having trouble paying for your Merck medicine? Merck may be able to help. www.merck.com/merckhelps

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Medication Guide

JANUVIA® (jah-NEW-vee-ah) (sitagliptin) Tablets

Read this Medication Guide carefully before you start taking JANUVIA and each time you get a refill. There may be new information. This information does not take the place of talking with your doctor about your medical condition or your treatment. If you have any questions about JANUVIA, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?

Serious side effects can happen in people taking JANUVIA, including inflammation of the pancreas (pancreatitis) which may be severe and lead to death.

Certain medical problems make you more likely to get pancreatitis.

Before you start taking JANUVIA:

Tell your doctor if you have ever had

- pancreatitis
- stones in your gallbladder (gallstones)
- a history of alcoholism
- high blood triglyceride levels
- kidney problems

Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

What is JANUVIA?

- JANUVIA is a prescription medicine used along with diet and exercise to lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with type 1 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in your blood or urine).
- If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas) in the past, it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting pancreatitis while you take JANUVIA.
- It is not known if JANUVIA is safe and effective when used in children under 18 years of age.

Who should not take JANUVIA?

Do not take JANUVIA if:

- you are allergic to any of the ingredients in JANUVIA. See the end of this Medication Guide for a complete list of ingredients in JANUVIA.

Symptoms of a serious allergic reaction to JANUVIA may include:

- rash
- raised red patches on your skin (hives)
- swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty in breathing or swallowing

What should I tell my doctor before taking JANUVIA?

Before you take JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you:

- have or have had inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).
- have kidney problems.
- have any other medical conditions.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if JANUVIA will harm your unborn baby. If you are pregnant, talk with your doctor about the best way to control your blood sugar while you are pregnant.

Pregnancy Registry: If you take JANUVIA at any time during your pregnancy, talk with your doctor about how you can join the JANUVIA pregnancy registry. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. You can enroll in this registry by calling 1-800-986-8999.

- are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. It is not known if JANUVIA will pass into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you are taking JANUVIA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your doctor and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

How should I take JANUVIA?

- Take JANUVIA 1 time each day exactly as your doctor tells you.
- You can take JANUVIA with or without food.
- Your doctor may do blood tests from time to time to see how well your kidneys are working. Your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA based on the results of your blood tests.
- Your doctor may tell you to take JANUVIA along with other diabetes medicines. Low blood sugar can happen more often when JANUVIA is taken with certain other diabetes medicines. See “What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?”.
- If you miss a dose, take it as soon as you remember. If you do not remember until it is time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and go back to your regular schedule. Do not take two doses of JANUVIA at the same time.
- If you take too much JANUVIA, call your doctor or local Poison Control Center right away.
- When your body is under some types of stress, such as fever, trauma (such as a car accident), infection or surgery, the amount of diabetes medicine that you need may change. Tell your doctor right away if you have any of these conditions and follow your doctor's instructions.
- Check your blood sugar as your doctor tells you to.

- Stay on your prescribed diet and exercise program while taking JANUVIA.
- Talk to your doctor about how to prevent, recognize and manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), high blood sugar (hyperglycemia), and problems you have because of your diabetes.
- Your doctor will check your diabetes with regular blood tests, including your blood sugar levels and your hemoglobin A1C.

What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?

Serious side effects have happened in people taking JANUVIA.

- See “What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?”.
- Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar, such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include:

• headache	• irritability
• drowsiness	• hunger
• weakness	• fast heart beat
• dizziness	• sweating
• confusion	• feeling jittery
- Serious allergic reactions. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away. See “Who should not take JANUVIA?”. Your doctor may give you a medicine for your allergic reaction and prescribe a different medicine for your diabetes.
- Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis

The most common side effects of JANUVIA include:

- upper respiratory infection
- stuffy or runny nose and sore throat
- headache

JANUVIA may have other side effects, including:

- stomach upset and diarrhea
- swelling of the hands or legs, when JANUVIA is used with rosiglitazone (Avandia®). Rosiglitazone is another type of diabetes medicine.

These are not all the possible side effects of JANUVIA. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you, is unusual or does not go away.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store JANUVIA?

Store JANUVIA at 68°F to 77°F (20°C to 25°C).

Keep JANUVIA and all medicines out of the reach of children.

General information about the use of JANUVIA

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes that are not listed in Medication Guides. Do not use JANUVIA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give JANUVIA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Medication Guide summarizes the most important information about JANUVIA. If you would like to know more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for additional information about JANUVIA that is written for health professionals. For more information, go to www.JANUVIA.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

What are the ingredients in JANUVIA?

Active ingredient: sitagliptin

Inactive ingredients: microcrystalline cellulose, anhydrous dibasic calcium phosphate, croscarmellose sodium, magnesium stearate, and sodium stearyl fumarate. The tablet film coating contains the following inactive ingredients: polyvinyl alcohol, polyethylene glycol, talc, titanium dioxide, red iron oxide, and yellow iron oxide.

What is type 2 diabetes?

Type 2 diabetes is a condition in which your body does not make enough insulin, and the insulin that your body produces does not work as well as it should. Your body can also make too much sugar. When this happens, sugar (glucose) builds up in the blood. This can lead to serious medical problems.

High blood sugar can be lowered by diet and exercise, and by certain medicines when necessary.

With a swipe of his pen on Thursday, Mayor Bill de Blasio will make New York the largest city to launch a municipal ID program.

"You have a lot of people who don't have that most basic form of ID across all demographics," de Blasio said Wednesday.

The city said the cards will benefit 500,000 residents without documentation. De Blasio said the card will enable New Yorkers to more easily sign a lease, open a bank account or get a library card.

The card will be recognized by the New York City Police Department as an official document, but cannot be used for travel.

Jessica Vaughn, director of policy studies for the Center for Immigration Studies, a group that supports limits on immigration, said municipal IDs are vulnerable to fraud.

"Regardless of what you think of immigration policy, these programs end up being forced to rely on documentary standards that fall below generally accepted standards," she said. CHESTER JESUS SORIA

Citing Nagin's devotion to his family and commitment to helping New Orleans, U.S. District Judge Helen Ginger Berrigan said a shorter prison term than that recommended under federal sentencing guidelines was warranted.

She ordered Nagin to turn himself in to begin serving his sentence no later than Sept. 8. With good behavior, and barring any appeals, Nagin could get out of prison after eight or nine years.

OBAMA'S MISSED OPPORTUNITY

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT
FOR CNN

The optics probably sounded great in the cloistered confines of the White House. "Hey, Mr. President, your approval ratings are a wreck, you can't even move a pizza delivery through Congress and the Supreme Court is smacking your policies down like beach volleyballs. You know what you need? A road trip!"

Good idea: Connect with folks, snag some charming photo ops and show how concerned you are about regular people.

But that was before a guy in Denver offered him a joint, before another shook his hand wearing a latex horse mask and before the president spent the evening playing pool with a friendly governor, all while a humanitarian crisis was erupting on the nation's southern border.

The traffic jam of children being detained there and facing wildly uncertain fates after entering the country illegally has prompted deep concern among Democrats and Republicans alike.

The president, of course, says Congress has failed to grapple with comprehensive immigration reform and may well bear some blame. Fair enough. But even some members of his own party spent the early part of the week quietly grouching that sometimes it's not enough to blame the other side, especially when innocent children are involved.

Sure, the president asked for money for the crisis, but the presidency is also about symbolism. And it clearly made some Democrats uncomfortable for Mr. Obama to be seemingly partying it up, heading to fund-raisers in Texas and yet steering away from a visit to the very place where they thought he was needed.

By the time you read this, maybe the White House will have recalculated and rerouted Mr. Obama to the border to see the calamity for himself.

But it looks like his team's first instinct was cold and clear: Keep him away from the problem physically, and that will keep him from being connected to it politically.

That early decision may well haunt him even if he takes corrective measures now. Because while standing too close to trouble can indeed be risky, so can standing too far away.

OMG! New phone app 3nder aims to make threesomes easy

A recently launched app is out to prove why three is indeed the magic number. Similar to dating app Tinder, 3nder (pronounced "trinder") users can swipe up denoting "yes" and down-swipe to dismiss potential partners. The app also allows users to search hook-ups using criteria such as age, gender and location and sexual orientation. But unlike other more overt hook-up sites, 3nder, which is linked to a user's Facebook account for security, doesn't allow for kinky pictures. Founder Dimo Trifonov explains to Metro why threeways don't have to be seedy.

Parkour hones the same skills kids are already developing on the playground. / THE MOVEMENT CREATIVE NYSCI. Museum's Best Summer Ever series kicks off with parkour for kids.

If your kids like to get creative at the playground, then consider taking their fun to the next level at the upcoming parkour workshops hosted by New York Hall of Science.

NYSCI's director of public programs, Liz Slagus, said The Movement Creative team will use parkour "as a way to get young people to think about their bodies and movement, encourage an active life and healthy style by making movement fun.

"It's what I never had growing up in gym class and something I thought our audiences would appreciate. I hope everyone comes away learning something new and maybe a sense of fun and excitement about being healthy and active."

The aptly named Jesse Danger, co-founder of The Movement Creative, believes parkour is great for kids because it teaches them skills to improve at activities they already love. "It tells them that with a little imagination, they can find something fun and challenging anywhere."

About the event

This Friday and July 18 at 3 p.m., parkour team The Movement Creative will be holding beginners' workshops for children ages 4 to 8 at NYSCI's Rocket Park. Balancing, jumping, crawling, climbing and vaulting are some of the skills the team will teach.

Participants are advised to wear comfortable clothes and shoes. Registration is available in person at the museum on the days of the workshops. A spot in the class costs $6 for nonmembers and $4 for NYSCI members.

The one book you need to read this summer

Take this quiz to find out what new release you should spend your next long weekend devouring.

2 CULTURE

Mostly As:

"My Accidental Jihad" by Krista Bremer

Even if you're trapped in the city all summer, this book will take you on an exotic getaway, and you'll lose yourself in the incredible true love story. Krista Bremer never expected to fall in love with an older Muslim man from Libya, yet that's exactly what happened. Her story captures the "anything can happen" spirit of summer.

When was the last time you cried?

- a. Recently, at a friend's wedding
- b. You can't remember, maybe someone's funeral a while back
- c. When the U.S. lost to Belgium in the World Cup
- d. After a breakup
- e. When you saw "The Fault in Our Stars"

When you're on the subway, what do you find yourself asking about your fellow commuters?

- a. What their husband or wife is like
- b. Whether or not they've killed someone (hey, you never know)
- c. What bar they hang out at
- d. Whether or not they believe in God
- e. What their deepest, darkest secrets are

Where do you usually turn for book recommendations?

- a. Your friends and favorite magazines
- b. Attention-grabbing titles in the thriller section at the bookstore
- c. The New York Times
- d. Covers with Oprah's stamp of approval
- e. A list of what's trending on Twitter

It doesn't get much better than your toes in the sand and your nose in a book. / BILLY BECERRA, METRO

What do you want to accomplish this summer?

- a. Take part in a hot summer fling
- b. Lounge by the pool somewhere your boss can't reach you
- c. Join a sports league (only partially for the post-game drinking)
- d. Discover a way to bring greater meaning to your life
- e. Tell your friend that you're hopelessly in love with him or her

Which of the following jobs would you rather have?

- a. Surfing instructor
- b. Detective
- c. Sports writer
- d. Botanist
- e. Therapist

Answer key

- Mostly As: See left
- Mostly Bs: "Summer House with a Swimming Pool" by Herman Koch
This psychological thriller will make your skin tingle, despite the 90 degree heat. A famous actor dies after a medical procedure, leaving a doctor searching for answers. It's a story of wealth, scandal and vengeance.
- Mostly Cs: "Eight World Cups" by George Vecsey
This book is a must-read for a sports enthusiast — especially if you have World Cup fever. Sports journalist George Vecsey covered soccer for nearly 30 years, and his book gives an up-close look at soccer greats such as Socrates, Diego Maradona and Roberto Baggio.
- Mostly Ds: "The Signature of All Things" by Elizabeth Gilbert
The "Eat, Pray, Love" author's latest book is now a paperback (finally) — so it's light enough to tote to the park. As you would expect with a novel by Gilbert, it's about love, adventure and self-discovery. This book will make you think long and hard about your own personal beliefs on love and life after death.
- Mostly Es: "Say What You Will" by Cammie McGovern
This is "the" YA book of summer. It's a little bit "Perks of Being a Wallflower," a little bit "Eleanor & Park" and a lot of something else entirely. Following two teens with disabilities who form a strong connection, it's a young adult book with grown-up lessons.

TIMELINE OF THE 'PLANET OF THE APES'

The "Apes" franchise, from conception to story's end, spans 2,000 years. Here it is, laid out. MATT PRIGGE

1963

Frenchman Pierre Boulle, author of the war saga "The Bridge on the River Kwai," publishes the novel "Monkey Planet," which would very soon serve as semi-loose inspiration for the film "Planet of the Apes." Interestingly, the book's shocking ending is closer to the nonsensical finale seen in Tim Burton's 2001 reboot of "Planet of the Apes."

1968-71

1968: The big-budget film "Planet of the Apes," starring Oscar-winners Charlton Heston and Kim Hunter, plus Roddy McDowall, becomes one of the year's biggest hits.

1970-1971: A significantly cheaper sequel, "Beneath the Planet of the Apes," comes out, this time with less Heston. "Escape from the Planet of the Apes," cheaper still, follows.

1972-73

1972: "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes," is released. Meanwhile, in the world of the original "Planet of the Apes," Charlton Heston and crew go into hibernation for a trip that will take them light years away from Earth.

1973: The fifth, final and worst-received film of the original series, "Battle of the Planet of the Apes," emerges.

In the world of "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes," 1991 is not the carefree year the Gulf War ended. It's a dystopian future where dogs and cats have gone extinct and apes have become slaves in what appears to be a police state. Led by McDowall's Caesar — son of the dead Zira and Cornelius from the first two — the apes successfully revolt.

2001

Tim Burton directs the reboot of "Planet of the Apes," starring an overly stoic Mark Wahlberg. It receives negative reviews but does OK at the box office (not good enough to warrant a sequel). Burton says he'd "rather jump out a window" than do a follow-up. On the bright side, every snarky alt-weekly uses the line "Marky Mark and Monkey Bunch."

2001-13

2011: The second reboot, "The Rise of the Planet of the Apes," comes out. Rather than apes played by humans in make-up, they're played by humans in no-longer-creepy motion-capture.

2013: In the world of "Battle for the Planet of the Apes," human society has fallen and remaining humans try to reach a stalemate with the apes.

2014-19

2014: The sequel to the reboot, "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes," comes out.

2019: In the world of "Rise of the Planet of the Apes," a smart chimp, Caesar (Andy Serkis), fomented a revolution/prison break with chimps being experimented on by scientists. Humankind is largely wiped out by a supervirus.

In the world of the Burton "Planet of the Apes," Mark Wahlberg sets off for the future. Meanwhile, in the world of "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes," surviving humans go to war with apes.

2670

In bookends in "Battle for the Planet of the Apes," "The Lawgiver" (John Huston!) recounts the events of "Battle for the Planet of the Apes" as proof that humans and apes will always get along.

3978

Here's the setting for both "Planet of the Apes" and "Beneath the Planet of the Apes," during which the arrival of humans from the 1970s triggers two films' worth of mayhem, culminating in the destruction of the planet.

Caesar (Andy Serkis) returns as a more fearsome leader in "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes." / WETA

Reasons why 'Apes' is great

Monkey trouble. Darker and better crafted than the original, the new "Dawn" takes the series to war.

1 It's not as political as the originals. Despite being cheap, G-rated money-gobblers meant to appeal to kids, the original "Apes" franchise that began in 1968 is actually one of the craziest, most political and most cynical in film. They're steeped in civil rights lingo and imagery; the fourth one even climaxes with a slave revolt. For a variety of reasons, "Rise" avoided all of that. Instead, it aimed to be a straight-up, lovingly crafted genre film. It was a prison escape picture with long dialogue-free stretches that sympathetically followed a mammal — chimp Caesar, "played" by motion-capture star Andy Serkis — as he was driven to revolt by careless humans. It was political, but on the sly: It details the birth of one character's radicalism.

2 This one has no good guys — or bad guys. In "Rise," humans were by and large the enemy, with a few token good eggs. Here, the line isn't so clear. A super-virus has wiped out society and much of humanity. There's a pocket of survivors in San Francisco who live without electricity or contact with other potential survivors. But they have tons of guns, as well as, in some cases, an irrational hatred of the apes who live nearby, in their own mini-society in the forest. But the apes, now led by Caesar, also hold a much more rational hatred of the humans who once tortured them. And yet there are no bad guys, and if there are — like ticking time bomb chimp Koba (Toby Kebbell), who rocks a giant scar given to him by meddling scientists — they have their reasons, too. Even the human leader, touchingly portrayed by Gary Oldman, is conflicted and more nervous than villainous.

3 It's visually assured. "Dawn"'s setup makes it sound like "Battle of the Planet of the Apes," the original series' nadir. This one is miles better, not only in smarts but also in how carefully it has been crafted. Director Matt Reeves is best known for the shaky-cam "Cloverfield," but he's a confident visualist who chooses his images carefully. In "Let Me In," his unexpectedly sharp redo of "Let the Right One In," he shot a car crash from the back seat. And he does a couple long-take wonders here, including one in a war zone. But most of the film is commanding in less show-offy ways. Reeves is clean and patient, allowing the film to build steadily before erupting into some truly impressive and scary monkey mayhem.

Some downsides

It takes the story very seriously

4 "Dawn" is clear-eyed in the way it charts mounting civil unrest between two factions without picking sides. But it could stand to have a bit more humor. It's very heavy, from the studied shot selection to the gravity of escalating warfare to the way every character is traumatized. Caesar has morphed into an intimidating and at times unknowable, even stubborn, leader. (Serkis gives a truly subtle performance that's all in the face.) "Dawn" sometimes forgets that it needs to be junk, too. But not always: The warfare sequences have a ramshackle, scrambling intensity. And it boasts a sight you probably didn't know you've always wanted to see: a chimpanzee astride a horse, blazing two machine guns.

Indie spotlight. Two old-timers hit Iceland in the new 'Land Ho!'

Earl Lynn Nelson (left) and Paul Eenhoorn play ex-brothers-in-law who bum around Iceland in "Land Ho!" / SONY PICTURES CLASSICS

What

In this mash-up of a road movie and a geezers-on-the-prowl comedy, two ex-brothers-in-law (Paul Eenhoorn and Earl Lynn Nelson) decide to bro down on a trip to Iceland.

The lowdown

Is "Land Ho!" an indie with mainstream aspirations or a mainstream film with indie aspirations? It's both. Despite a cast and crew that hail from microbudgeted films, the material is unapologetically populist. It's a crowd-pleaser, even cliched. But it's cliched in a way that embraces the cliches; it doesn't fall into them by rote or for cynical reasons. Still, it isn't that mainstream: The stars are given the space to gab in long chatty scenes, even as the camera soaks up the bold colors of Iceland. It's also another kind of film: the kind that makes stars out of its odd-couple leads. Nelson, a real-life Kentucky surgeon, is a natural who you never catch acting and whose life force is so strong it seems he could burst through the screen. MATT PRIGGE

Judging Richard Linklater's 'Boyhood'

Time passing. The director's latest experiment follows the life of one kid over a dozen years.

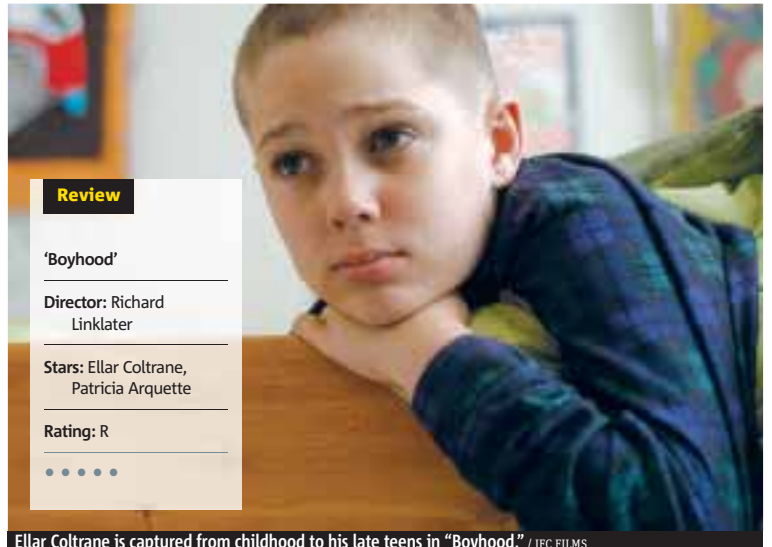

The premise of "Boyhood" is that a more or less ordinary boy named Mason Jr. (Ellar Coltrane) grows up. That sounds less spectacular than what actually happened: The boy really did grow up. Filmmaker Richard Linklater shot the film piecemeal over 12 years, observing Coltrane as well as actors Patricia Arquette and Ethan Hawke. How'd he do?

Presentation

"Boyhood" would be worthwhile even if it had been phoned in. Take the "Up" documentary series, which has checked in on the same group every seven years since 1964. "Up" doesn't break from its sometimes-wearying formula, yet it's mind-blowing simply because watching people age really does blow minds, even if the lives are routine. We're all going to die, yet we don't always treat our lives as if there's only one of them. The "Up" films and "Boyhood" remind us that we all age and that mortality looms.

Conduct

"Boyhood" is not phoned in. Because the footage shot in 2002 has to look apiece with what was shot in 2009, it has a plain style. But Linklater never shapes

Smooth moving

Agility

At almost three hours, "Boyhood" only has on average 13 minutes to dwell on each segment. It still has Linklater's patented leisurely pace. He doesn't even tell us when he's jumped ahead, we just have to guess from changing hairstyles and context clues when a year has elapsed. Linklater couldn't have predicted how Coltrane — not to mention Arquette and Hawke — would change over the 12 years. But there's a shocking control and unity to the storytelling, with details and lines that resonate the longer it goes on.

his segments the same way; they're always different. Mason Jr. is introduced, at 6, as the son of a divorced couple: harried mom (Arquette) and "cool" slacker dad (Ethan Hawke). He and his sister (Lorelei Linklater) stay with mom, who drags them around. This means there's variety and a real story, even if it's one with giant time leaps that bury key events (marriages, jobs, births, relationships) in ellipses.

Effort

For an ambitious artist with outside-the-box ideas such as "Boyhood" and the "Before" films, Linklater is laid-back. Occasionally, he's even lazy. The multiple macho alkie stepfathers get tiresome. Likewise, the time period signposts — from music (Coldplay, The Flaming Lips, Gnarl Barkley, Phoenix) to world events (Fallujah, the '08 election, "Tropic Thunder") — tend to be dropped too wink-winkily.

Accuracy

Mason Jr. doesn't exactly have a normal life, but he still winds up a certain type: a sarcastic, cynical know-it-all who tends to hide behind a strangely affable smirk. He thinks the machine of life won't eat him up, but it very well could one way or another. By the end, so much has changed — a whole life seems to have been lived, and yet there's still so much left. "Boyhood" feels like it could go on forever.

Going just 'a hair off'

Acting style. Uzo Aduba shares the secrets to becoming Suzanne.

After a first season where she awkwardly pursued main character Piper, Crazy Eyes (Uzo Aduba), or Suzanne, as she prefers to be called, took a darker turn in the second season of "Orange Is the New Black." Pulled into the villainous Vee's (Lorraine Toussaint) group of contraband dealers, she showed a new menacing side.

Asked if she thinks Suzanne went too far, Aduba says, "I don't know if you can go too far. Jenji [Kohan, the series creator] had said it felt like summer camp a little bit. She wanted to really bring the reality of the world [into Season 2]."

She adds, "I think it just made me realize how far people will go for love."

Suzanne occupies an unusual place in the hierarchy of Litchfield, the show's fictional prison. While many inmates suffer from mental illness, it's Suzanne who most shows this side at first glance. But she never becomes a caricature.

"I was less interested in the 'playing' of the crazy. It's never interesting to me when someone plays at something," says Aduba. "It's just, 'be it,' and whatever comes out of it, comes out of it."

One tactic? Doing everything just "a hair off," as Aduba says. When Suzanne tries to do something playful, like wink, "it just never lands the way it's supposed to."

Aduba decided one of Suzanne's characteristics would be an intense focus on the person she was talking to. Alex (Laura Prepon) was the recipient of some of that focus. Laughing, Aduba says, "That felt weird to do. I'm sure it felt weird for Laura to receive."

Suzanne's famous hairstyle changed in Season 2. But when asked to dish on whether it would change again in the third season, Aduba invokes the show's dreaded solitary confinement units: "I'm not going to SHU over that."

Diversity

Actor and advocate?

The show's success has only doubled its commitment to telling the stories of minorities. It's something the cast takes pride in, but it also places a great deal of responsibility on them. "As an Afro-Latina woman, I feel even more responsibility. I'm in this show that's entertaining, but at the same time, it's starting all these wonderful conversations about different types of people and different situations," says Selenis Leyva, who portrays kitchen boss Gloria.

Laverne Cox, who made the cover of Time magazine for her advocacy work, adds "I'm feeling the responsibility ... in a really intense way."

She understands the attention, but says, "There's so many amazing trans folks out there doing amazing work and they need attention, too."

Koons-a-palooza

Whimsy. Jeff Koons is taking over NYC this summer.

Jeff Koons has been transforming the everyday into the extraordinary since his first NYC exhibit in 1980. More than three decades — and millions of dollars — later, “Jeff Koons: A Retrospective” is taking over the Whitney Museum of American Art to showcase the artist’s 35-year career.

This chronological survey exhibits over 130 sculptures and paintings. Together, they unveil Koons’ rise to stardom as the second-most valuable living artist today. His trademark is the transformation of popular culture into art; his multimedia career continually uplifts mass media into, as Koons calls it, “proletarian luxuries.”

In his breakthrough “Equilibrium” series,

Artist Jeff Koons / GC IMAGES

Koons suspended basketballs in tanks of water, transforming a useful toy into an object of observation. In “Balloon Dog” (1994-2000), Koons immortalized the simple pleasures of childhood in stainless steel. This playful piece from the “Celebration” series has a hefty price tag: It sold at Christie’s last November for $58.4 million, making it the most expensive work by a living artist ever sold at auction.

Elevating lowbrow commodities to highbrow art is a complicated game of pro-

Topiary

Beyond the Whitney

Take a stroll through Rockefeller Center to view Koons’ gigantic “Split-Rocker,” a topiary sculpture on view through Sept. 12. It stands over 37 feet high and features 50,000 flowering plants. Modeled after the aluminum sculpture of the same name on view at the Whitney Museum, the half-pony, half-horse design shares the same uncanny resemblance to a child’s “Little Tikes” rocker.

duction — through casting and cutting-edge technology, Koons challenges the limits of fabrication. “Hulk Elvis,” for example, is a masterful trompe l’oeil — it’s actually created from industrial steel and granite. The level of craftsmanship blurs the distinction between the “real thing” and the art in the museum.

Staring into the mirror-polished “Hanging Heart” (1994-2006) elicits the desire to possess a shiny new toy. For Koons, the boundary between the museum and the market is not a static divide, but a crosswalk that continually shifts with the changing times.

This is the last exhibition the Whitney will host in the Upper East Side. It’s closing its doors in October and will reopen downtown, at the south end of the High Line, in spring 2015.

THE WORD

Ned Ehrbar takes on the world of gossip.

NED EHRRBAR
@Nedrick

You know what your television needs more of? Courtney Love. The singer and lovable crazy-pants will be guest-starring on the next season of "Sons of Anarchy," reports to TVLine and will play a preschool teacher. Love is by no means a novice actor, since she's done all right for herself in movies like "The People vs. Larry Flynt," and "Sid and Nancy." But a preschool teacher? All right, if you insist, "Sons of Anarchy." The seventh and final season of the show will also feature Marilyn Manson, so clearly they're working on a theme here. Maybe he'll play a librarian.

Beginner braider

The Braid

1 This fishtail braid looks elaborate, but it seriously only takes five minutes to do. Part your hair and divide it into two sections. Huffnagle recommends a side part so your braid will land over your shoulder. Take a small part of the outer section of one of the two sections you divided your hair into and cross it over, adding it to the inside of the other hair section. Then, do the exact same thing with the other side. Secure the end with an elastic. Pro tip: "The smaller the sections are that you pull from the two bigger sections, the more delicate the braid will look," Huffnagle says.

Braids to beat the heat

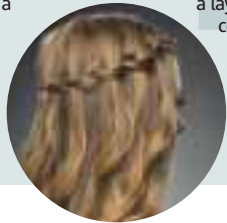

City humidity doesn't mean you have to spend summer in ponytails and messy buns. DreamDry senior stylist Faith Huffnagle shares with us three beautiful braided styles that not only look awesome, but will keep you cool. Bonus: All three styles are easier to do when your hair is a little dirty, so go ahead and hit snooze. EMILY LAURENCE

Intermediate braider

The Juliette

The Juliette is perfect if you are going out to drinks with friends. Start by sectioning the top third part of your hair and dividing it into three sections. Start a regular braid, but after the first pull, drop one of the section parts and weave a new section part in with the other two. You will be adding to the two original sections all the way around your head, dropping one section with each pull, creating the cascading waterfall look. "If a layer ends, just connect it to another piece of hair and continue," Huffnagle advises.

Expert braider

The Bianca

A braid crown has a bohemian look, making it perfect for flirty summer dresses. Start by grabbing a four-inch section of hair behind your ear. Then, divide that section in to three equal parts, like you would to start a normal braid. What makes this braid different from a normal braid is that you are going to add in hair to the center section of the braid as you work your way around your head towards your other ear. While working, make sure to keep your braid tight; you can pull it apart a little at the end to loosen it. When you get all the way around, finish braiding any extra hair, secure it with an elastic and position the finished plait around your head so it looks like a crown. Once you have a shape you're happy with, pin it in place. Pull the braid apart a bit to give it a messy, relaxed look.

To tweeze or wax? Two experts go brow to brow in this great beauty debate

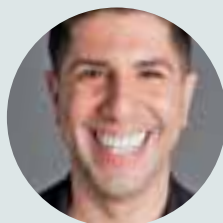

Tweezing

Ramy Gafni

What method do you prefer? I'm in favor of tweezing. You can literally take out one hair at a time, so it's very succinct. With waxing, you can ruin the entire line of the brow or take out a chunk of the brow unintentionally.

How much upkeep does your method require? For most people, once a month is ideal and you don't have to do touch-ups between appointments.

How can someone create the right brow shape for their face? Follow your bone structure; where the brow bone sticks out the most, the arch should peak. I tell people to only tweeze obvious strays. Plucking is like eating potato chips, you can't stop at just one!

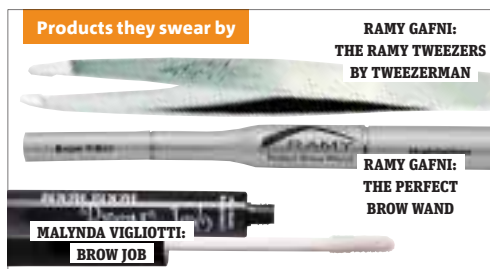

Trusting a complete stranger with the main focal point of your face can be pretty scary, especially now since brows are having a moment. Some are hesitant to go to an eyebrow waxer in fear that their shape will be ruined in all of 10 seconds. Others swear by it, saying tweezing just doesn't give you the same look. We took this debate to two experts, Boom Boom Brow Bar owner Malynda Vigliotti and Ramy Gafni, who clients to do nothing between appointments.

How can someone create the right shape for their face? The first step is to identify where the brows should start, where the arch should go and where the brow should end. Then you adapt accordingly. If someone has a round face, they should have more of an arched brow. You have to work with what you have.

Where art and lotion mingle

Kiehl's sure knows how to throw a party! For the grand opening of its latest Nolita boutique — home to a new art installation by Marilyn Minter — the brand is inviting shoppers to stop in and celebrate. Shake it to the tunes of DJ Mad Marj and take in some eye candy: In addition to Minter, who will be on hand for the festivities, the store will focus on female artists, including Brooklyn's Fanny Gentle.

To honor the partnership, Kiehl's and Minter will donate $20,000 to Planned Parenthood of New York City. You can contribute, too: Tote bags featuring Minter's work for the store will be on sale for $20, and proceeds will also benefit Planned Parenthood. If you're one of the first 50 guests to arrive before 6:30 p.m. you'll receive a gift card that could be worth up to $1,000 toward a Kiehl's shopping spree. You'll never have to worry about lotion again.

What we're into this week ...

What does it really mean to "let go"?

How do you keep a long-distance relationship great?

Love-challenged? Tell me your story and email thelovepros@gmail.com for a chance to be on TV.

For Charles' answers to these questions, visit his blog on metro.us.

Ways that marriage can bring out your worst

Marriage is the legal, religious and/or spiritual joining of two people. Typically, these two people are driven by love, romance and desire to be together. But love is the easy part; cohabitation and long-term relationships offer more challenges. The longer you are with someone, the more you learn about them — what makes them tick and what gets under their skin — as well as yourself. And sometimes, things can go sideways and even downright sour.

Here are the top ways that marriage can actually make things worse for you and for your significant other.

You let go of friendships

People believe that once you're married, you need to let go of past relationships, but that's not healthy. By sacrificing friends, you limit your exposure to people who have indirectly helped guide your thoughts. This can end up limiting your personal growth and stagnate your relationship.

You fight dirty

If you know the little things about them, you hold a lot of power in an argument. In relationship terms, it's called "going for the jugular" — meaning you say or do the precise thing that is the ultimate insult and thus "win" the fight. But the aftermath is often worse than the fight itself.

You withhold sex/love/emotional support: When dating, passion and love are free-flowing. But after marriage and a few years of real and/or imagined slights, resentment can build, resulting in lots of "I'm not in the mood" or "Well, I guess you need to work that out" statements to your significant other. Abandoning your partner's physical or emotional needs leads to separation and establishes habits of non-communication and hiding instead of sharing and honesty.

You let yourself go

For exclusive commentary, visit Metro.us/blogs.

Up: USA's "Satisfaction": I just participated in a panel for the advance screening of summer's hottest TV show and talked about marriage, monogamy and infidelity.

Down: Phone addiction: It's summer! Put down that phone and enjoy the world around you instead.

As couples exit courtship, sometimes they don't feel the need to maintain their physical appearance. These actions and statements send a direct message to your partner that you don't value them, and you don't value yourself.

You stop going the extra mile for your spouse

When first dating, men and women have their heart and soul invested in the little things: texts in the middle of the day, love notes in lipstick on the mirror, flowers. Sometimes in marriage, comfort creeps in, spontaneity and romance wane, and the little things get left behind as "unimportant." In truth, it's always the little things that count.

Awareness is key to stopping these damaging cycles

The bottom line: Saying "I love you" is one thing, but actions speak volumes, and it's what your partner does need to back up his or her words. Stay connected, don't get comfortable and keep putting effort into your actions.

Independence eats

Bastille Day.

Enjoy France's most lauded contribution to the world: food.

We had ours on the Fourth of July, now it's time for France's equivalent on July 14. Go out and show your solidarity with the French in overthrowing the monarchy by eating some Paris-worthy grub.

Sit down

General Assembly

Time travel is almost possible this Bastille Day at General Assembly. The restaurant is re-creating a menu by French culinary icon Auguste Escoffier from all the way back in 1900. The only thing not from 1900 is the price, but it's still a good deal at $65.

360 Park Ave. S., 212-951-7111

Bo's

New Orleans hasn't been France's property for a long time, but Louisiana cuisine wouldn't be the same without its influence. Laissez les bon temps rouler at Bo's for roasted oysters, andouille gumbo and etouffée in a relaxed setting. Save room for the cayenne-spiced beignets with caramel-chocolate sauce and coconut cream.

6 W. 24th St., 212-234-2373

La Fete Montmartre

Instead of the cream sauces and foie gras that can weigh down a hot day, this West Chelsea eatery's French-style bites keep it light: dill crepe salmon rilette and socca corn with fromage blanc, served to the tune of a live gypsy jazz band. Tickets are

$89, which include food and our favorite kind of bar: an open one! 158 Eighth Ave., 646-596-8838

Casual fare

La Maison Du Croque Monsieur

Want to eat a gourmet sandwich in the former home of erotic novelist Anaïs Nin? The French would approve, and La Maison knows it — they've named their sandwiches after her various lovers. There's smoked salmon with herb goat cheese, a French take on the Cuban and no shortage of fromage-focused varieties. For Bastille Week, any croque and a glass of wine is $10. Ooh la la.

17 E. 13th St., 212-675-2227

The Clicquot Mail Truck at Bagatelle

A Petanque tournament, oysters and a glass of Veuve Clicquot is how Bastille Day should be celebrated. Bagatelle is throwing the indoor equivalent of a French lawn party, with the Clicquot crew standing by to serve bubbly in the most of-the-moment way: from a food truck. 1 Little West 12th St., 212-488-2110

Haven Rooftop

If the weather behaves, there's no better place to celebrate than on a rooftop overlooking the city (even though you can't see the Eiffel Tower from here). The

Traditional

Louro

Chef David Santos might have roots in Portugal, but it was his uncle's bay plant in his French backyard that inspired him to call his restaurant Louro, which means bay leaf in Portuguese. This Bastille Day he'll celebrate everything French, beginning with a complimentary French 75 cocktail and cheese puffs. The Bastille Day prix fixe dinner is $65 — BYO wine and beer. 142 W. 10th St., 212-206-0606

The kitchen at Louro found a way to pretty up foie gras. / PROVIDED

French prix fixe menu is $49, and for an additional $20 you can toast with Champagne. Bon appétit! 132 W. 47th St., 212-466-9000

Block party

Bastille Day on 60th Street

Celebrate the historic friendship between the U.S. and France at the city's biggest Bastille Day party on Sunday beginning at noon. France gave us the Statue of Liberty, you've gotta raise your glass to that! This family friendly fete will have crepes, wine, beer, music, face painting and more. 22 E. 60th St., 212-355-6100

Cercle Rouge

From Friday at noon, La Fete Nationale takes over West Broadway with Petanque tournaments across 12 regulation-size courts, traditional French street food, live music and a Nicolas Feuillatte Champagne bar. Smoke out booze problems instead

I don't hear anyone debating how much alcohol I can buy at a liquor store. Seems like pure ignorance that people think they can use the law to control how I spend my money, let alone what I do in my house. Ignorance must be bliss for those people, because they're forgetting that our country was founded upon leaving another for the separation of church and state. It's not like our country is making a religion out of alcohol — it's not like we can't get drunken drivers off the streets — no, we need to get pot smokers out of their homes!

Priorities for Congress

After an alleged private early June meeting with the Bilderberg Group, Obama made the following frightening proclamation: "We cannot continue to rely only on our military in order to achieve the national security objectives that we've set. We've gotta have a civilian national security force that's just as powerful, just as strong, just as well-funded." Hopefully your readers will ask their members of Congress demand to know who shaped these objectives.

Anthony plans to re-up with New York: Report

NBA. Carmelo Anthony has reportedly decided to re-sign with the Knicks for a five-year max contract.

After weeks of deliberation, it appears Carmelo Anthony has bought into Phil Jackson's game plan.

The Daily News reports Wednesday afternoon that Anthony will return to New York "barring a last-minute change of heart."

The 30-year-old forward reportedly has a five-year, $129 million deal on the table. Since the Knicks retain his "Bird rights" they could offer him more money than any other suitor. He will reportedly make his announcement on Thursday, the first day free agents can sign.

Anthony's agent told ESPN his client had yet to make a final decision.

Anthony opted out of the final year of his contract last month and spent the first week of July on a tour of various landing spots. He met with the Bulls, Rockets, Mavericks and Lakers about signing with each team. The Lak-son. The team also owes Andrea Bargnani $12 million in 2014-15.

With the Knicks' team salary currently at just over $59 million, the signing of Anthony would put them at $84.8 million for next season. The salary cap was officially set at $63.065 million Wednesday by the NBA, with the luxury tax kicking in at $76.829 million.

The Knicks wouldn't be able to make any more meaningful moves this offseason unless they could unload Stoudemire or Bargnani.

Jackson has reportedly been shopping both players, most notably Stoudemire to the Sixers, but reportedly would need to include Iman Shumpert or Tim Hardaway Jr. to sweeten the deal.

Anthony averaged 27.4 points and career-high 8.1 rebounds per game last season as the Knicks stumbled to a 37-45 record. They missed the playoffs for the first time since 2010 and head coach Mike Woodson was fired. Jackson was brought on and the team hired Derek Fisher as head coach.

James in limbo

Veteran NBA writer Chris Sheridan reported Wednesday evening LeBron James would sign with the Cavs.

ers and Bulls seemed to hold the most appeal to Anthony, but in the end he has apparently decided to stay with New York.

Jackson, the Knicks' new president, also got a chance to pitch Anthony on his vision for the club going forward.

The Knicks are in salary cap hell, largely due to the contract of Amar'e Stoudemire, who is due $23.4 million next sea-

Parsons, Mavs agree

Restricted free agent Chandler Parsons was unhappy with the Rockets' latest offer and did what he was entitled to do — sign a huge deal with someone else. The forward agreed to a three-year, $45 million deal with the Mavericks on Wednesday. The Rockets will have three days to match the deal.

Tanaka hits DL, sent for MRI on arm

Just when you think it couldn't get any worse for the Yankees' starting rotation, the only consistent performer has hit the disabled list.

Masahiro Tanaka complained of soreness in his right elbow and was immediately placed on the 15-day DL and sent back to New York for an MRI.

"I think you always worry when a guy has an elbow MRI," manager Joe Girardi said before Wednesday's game. "But until Dr. [Christopher] Ahmad sees him, I don't have much more for you."

Tanaka was 11-1 with a 1.99 ERA through his first 14 starts in the majors, but is just 1-3 with a 4.25 ERA in his last four starts. METRO

Argentina set to meet Germany for World Cup

World Cup. Lionel Messi will get a chance to win his first World Cup title in South America on Sunday.

The drama never seems to subside as the World Cup finally has its final two. Argentina outlasted the Netherlands after a 0-0 stalemate led to penalty kicks and an Argentine victory, 4-2.

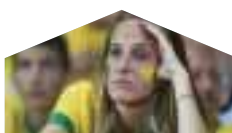

It wasn't the shooters in the shootout who solidified Argentina's victory, it was their goalkeeper Sergio Romero who saved two shots off the feet of Ron Vlaar and Wesley Sneijder, respectively, to clinch the victory.

Four South Americans — Lionel Messi, Ezequiel Garay, Sergio Aguero and Maxi Rodriguez — scored on their penalty kicks after the first 120 minutes contained very little offense and was not enough to decide the match's outcome.

Argentina heads to its fifth World Cup final to face Germany, who defeated Brazil, 7-1, on Tuesday. It's Argentina's first trip to the final in 24 years. Germany last won

Nets add Jack, Karasev in deal with Cavaliers

The Cavaliers are looking to clear cap space for a run at LeBron James, and the Nets were there to help.

ESPN reports the Cavs, Nets and Celtics have agreed to a three-team deal, though it cannot be made official until Thursday when the free-agent signing begins.

The Nets add point guard Jarrett Jack and forward Sergey Karasev from Cleveland, while the Cavs will receive European prospects Edin Bavec, Christian Drejer and Ilkan Karaman from Brooklyn.

Jack is due $12.6 million over the next two seasons at an annual cap hit of $6.3 million. There is another $6.3 million team option in 2016-17, though it's unlikely that will ever be picked up. METRO
